

Discussion: Using 911 data for crime prevention and control, and the prosecution of criminal offenses

Subsidiary Technical Group on Emergency and Security Systems (STG-ESS)
Inter-American Community of Emergency and Security Systems
Inter-American Community of Crime Analysts
Inter-American Community of Crime Observatories

AGENDA

Master of ceremonies and Moderation: Karen Bozicovich, Section Chief, Public Security Information and Knowledge, DPS/OAS [10 minutes]

Welcome remarks: Héctor Amaya, President, IACA's Sub-committee of Latin American Development [5 minutes]

Introductory remarks: Patricio Tudela, Executive Director, IACA Crime Analyst Network Chile [10 minutes]

Panelists:

- Andrea Aguirre, National Director of Data Analysis, ISS ECU 911 (Quito, Ecuador) > Emergency Statistics: Current challenges and processes for continual improvement [12 minutes]
- Juan Toapanta, Director, Citizen Security Metropolitan Observatory (Quito, Ecuador) > The use of secondary information for analysis and research methodologies [12 minutes]
- David Perez Esparza, Head, National Information Center in the National Public Security System Executive Secretariat (CNI-SESNSP, Mexico) > Multi-source system for estimating crime incidence aimed to police intelligence [12 minutes]
- Pablo di Clemente, Coordinator, Municipal Center for Strategic Crime Analysis (General Pueyrredon, Buenos Aires, Argentina) > CATE 911: The use of official sources of information at the local government level. The experience of the Municipality of General Pueyrredon [12 minutes]

Questions and answers: moderated by Patricio Tudela, Executive Director, IACA Crime Analyst Network Chile [30 minutes]

Final thought based on panelists' lessons learned and recommendations [12 minutes]

Closing remarks: Karen Bozicovich, Section Chief, Public Security Information and Knowledge, DPS/OAS [5 minutes]